

Special offer to Technology Industry Association Members

KPMG's Research & Development (R&D) Incentives group will provide members of the Technology Industry Association (TIA) an initial no cost 'opportunity review' service to help them determine whether they are both eligible and competitive to pursue relevant government funding programs.

KPMG national R&D Incentives group has extensive experience in dealing with federal and state government agencies and is able to assist clients in a wide range of industries to identify government environmental incentives and other assistance schemes that can support their innovation efforts in this area.

Our team includes specialists drawn from disciplines including taxation, information technology, engineering, science, law and accounting who aim to ensure clients receive the best possible advice and support. The team is experienced in obtaining government funding and advising clients on complex issues involved with the conduct of R&D projects. We deal with the tax aspects of technology development, from conceptualisation to commercialisation.

How can we help?

Our R&D Incentives group can advise on suitable strategies to help meet your technology development needs. We endeavour to achieve quality results by utilising established work practices and multi-disciplinary teams of KPMG professionals to help meet the specific requirements of your project and business.

R&D tax concession registrations

We aim to provide a comprehensive service in assessing projects, preparing documents and completing project costing for claims by our clients under the 125 percent R&D tax concession scheme.

R&D assessment support

The R&D Incentives group has experience in providing technical and taxation support for Innovation Australia reviews of R&D tax concession projects. We aim to be involved in all stages of the process from initial assessments through reviews, to challenging Innovation Australia decisions in the Administrative Appeals Tribunal.

Government Assistance programs

The R&D Incentives group has extensive experience in dealing with various federal and state government agencies and is able to identify government assistance schemes for R&D projects and their commercialisation. Our team aims to provide a comprehensive service and can assist with gaining funding and ongoing management reporting required by government agencies.

R&D business process management

The processes for controlling your R&D projects and accounting correctly for expenditure are an important part of management decisions about the future direction of the project. We provide a variety of services to help you manage indirect R&D benefits, such as management control and communications.

Contact us

In Adelaide, KPMG has a specialist team of eight experienced full-time consultants who can help you with R&D and commercialisation issues and assist with your business needs.

Please contact Matt Herring, Partner in Charge of R&D Incentives group, on 8236 3163 or mherring@kpmg.com.au.